

Olesya Lane

ENTREPRENEUR TUTOR SPEAKER

I love inspiring others to create joyful and durable garments from their clothing. I help to move away from the fast fashion, saving a small fortune on the way.

'I interviewed Olesya for my podcast: Sustainability Explored. She is such a rare find - a natural speaker with clarity in mind.'

Olesya is an inspiration, sharing her passion for mending and upcycling of clothes with joy, easiness, and in a clear, understandable, and fun way.

A real pleasure to work with - both in the podcast, pre-production and post-production. I can't wait to release our episode and share it with the world 😊'

Olesya Lane is a founder of Slow Fashion Bus, based in Northamptonshire, in the UK.

Her vision is realised through educating others: why it is important, and how to mend and upcycle clothes. Olesya also creates unique garments from discarded fabrics and clothes; this is her way to share joy with others.

Olesya had her first upcycling project around 30 years ago: taking her dad's t-shirt, chopping it into pieces and creating a new top for herself. This brought so much joy; little did she know that this will become her driving passion later in life.

In 2017, Olesya chose to follow her passion. Now she inspires others to be creative and enjoy this journey too.
